FUNCTION

While arranging the children's room parents often find it hard to choose the wardrobe. Do small children really need it? It turns out that this interesting design from the Peekaboo Collection comes across the needs both of the newborn and - especially - the parents, and also accompanies children till school age. From the very moment the baby is born the wardrobe stores baby clothes. The size of the shelves and the rack for hanging clothes provide very convenient space for all the necessary accessories. Spacious drawers provide space for toys, books or socks when the kid grows older. Easily accessible, easy-to-grip by the hole, they are designed to be used by our children unassisted - something parents can't wait to happen. They also encourage our little ones to keep the room clean and tidy from the very early years.
